

Ready for more clues and mysteries? Check out TREX by Christyne Morrell!

As a child, Trex Wilson received an experimental brain implant that saved his life, but it came with an unusual side effect: he shocks everything he touches. To make matters worse, his overprotective mother has kept him on the move his entire life, convinced that the scientists who saved him now want to exploit the technology in his head. When she finally agrees to send him to school for sixth grade, Trex is determined to lead a normal life at last. Unfortunately, the electricity sparking from his fingertips is getting more powerful by the day.

When rumors emerge about a prowler sneaking around his new neighborhood, Trex sets out to catch the culprit so his mother won't uproot him again. He teams up with Mellie "the Mouse," a reclusive classmate training to be a spy. Mellie is certain she saw lightning shoot from Trex's fingers, and she's intent on exposing the new kid and nabbing the bad guy. As a grudging friendship develops between them, Trex and Mellie find themselves pitted against school bullies, their own parents, and yes, an evil, brain-hacking corporation. Along the way, they'll question what it means to be "normal" and explore the fine line between secrets and lies.
